Annual CMVFD Auction August 17, 2019

The Annual CMVFD Auction is August 17 at 10AM until we run out of steam or daylight. We never run out of good stuff. This year we have a good part of the contents of a whole house, plus a couple of cottage closeouts, plus the usual gift certificates and box lots. It's probably the best quality we've ever seen.

TIME TO THINK ABOUT VOLUNTEERING

By Sue McKeen

The Whitefield School loves volunteers. Last year a call was put out for volunteers and answered by people who believe that the kids are worth it and the payback invaluable. Just ask Cari Jewett, Pam Kenoyer, Phyllis Buck, Joanne Steneck, Pat Parks, Natasha Mayers, Martha Gottlieb and Barbara Hayden. All volunteers who gave the commitment of their time, energy and caring.

I sat down with principal Mark Deblois who had nothing but praise for the volunteers. He said, "It's all positive, it all benefits the kids. They (volunteers) have a tremendous impact and you never know when an important connection will be made between a student and a volunteer."

He told me volunteers not only benefit the kids who may be struggling academically, but can also lend a hand to those kids who would like to try alternative enrichment activities. Deblois said that all the students have a designated time at the end of the day which is focused on student needs as well as a time to try on their creative side. He noted enrichment programs are important and can be a reward for the student who may be struggling with a task. He said members of the community are encouraged to share their talents with students who might not otherwise have the opportunity to learn about new ideas and experiences.

Meagan Soule, the school Student Support Specialist recently told me, "All the volunteers care about the kids and want the school to be the best it can be. Volunteers support the kids academically as well as being another adult they can trust. The kids look forward to seeing them and form important relationships. Volunteers are an important link between the community and the school and make a real difference."

If you want to make a difference in your school and your community, please contact Mark Deblois or Meagan Soule at the school at 549-7691.

Congratulations to John Cook!!!

Out and About In Whitefield

By Christine LaPado-Breglia

A little more than two years ago, I had the good fortune of meeting local writer May Davidson through her Lincoln County News column "No Longer Lower Round Pond," which I edit for the paper. It is not an understatement to say that May – who has become one of my dearest friends – is one of the best writers in Lincoln County, in Maine, well, anywhere. Her ability to capture in words the beauty of her life, her surroundings, and those dear to her is a talent that few possess, and that ability seems to come directly from her deeply beautiful heart and willingness to always meet life openly and honestly.

After writing a column for the LCN for many decades, May recently came out with a book titled "Whatever It Takes: Seven Decades of True Love, Hard Work, and No Regrets," published by Islandport Press. Locals might have noticed that the hefty pile of them that were for sale at Sheepscot General quickly disappeared.

I am fortunate to have a copy of "Whatever It Takes," which tells story after story – sometimes poignant, sometimes funny, and always interesting – of the long married life and adventures of May and her husband, Jim, who passed away in 2017. Chicken farming, raising sheep, being long-haul big-rig drivers, inventing windbells that sound exactly like specific buoys – this is a tiny smattering of what May and Jim did in the heartfelt, hard-working, good-natured way they seemed to approach everything they did.

The way May closes the last chapter of her book, "May and Jim: A Love Story," is particularly lovely: "In the early days of just the two of us laboring in the workshop making bells, we often listened to a favorite FM radio station that played soft music. A piece we especially liked was a piano version of 'Ballade Pour Adeline.' It is a lilting, delicately ethereal kind of melody, joyous in the pictures it evokes. One day when it was playing, Jim left the welder and came over to hug me and say softly, 'When I hear that, I always think of you and me dancing in the pastures.'

"Yes, we certainly did dance. And somehow, somewhere, I believe that will always be true."

A little history about May: She was born in Bremen and lived for most of her 90 years in Bristol with Jim. She and Jim moved to Whitefield in 2012, after they retired from North Country Wind Bells, the company they founded.

May loves Whitefield. She says that "because of the beauty of Whitefield and its friendly and kind citizens, it made us feel we were back in the days and times of true rural life and the caring of neighbors for one another.

"We have the best of all life's modern advantages here in Whitefield," May says, "but we still have unspoiled beauty of fields providing harvests of hay and crops, also supporting cattle, sheep, and horses. Glorious forests, and the deep comfort of peaceful, quiet surroundings – in essence, Whitefield reflects Maine's slogan 'The way life should be.'"

Watch for upcoming "Whatever It Takes" book events, yet to be announced, at the Whitefield Library & Community Center and at Sheepscot General. Go to islandportpress.com to learn more and to purchase a copy of May's book.

Douglas Store

This store stood at the top of Grand Army hill beside the Arlington Grange hall which can be partially seen in the background.

The exact year it was built by Jason Carlton is unclear but it is believed to be circa 1870. A couple of years later he built a house across the road. He ran the store until 1881 when he sold the store to Frank Douglas.

Frank's son Ed took over the store circa 1900. In 1905 the New England telephone Company extended a line into Whitefield located at the store. You can see the phone sign in the photograph, the Post Office was also housed there for years.

The upper floor housed Town offices and was the site of local business meetings. There was an icehouse at the back. There was a tie up for horses and as automobiles started replacing the horses Ed installed gas pumps. The store carried yard goods, embroidery floss, thread, candy, ice cream, grain, harness equipment, ice, kerosene, rubber boots and even plug tobacco.

Ed married Belle Fowles in 1902 and they ran the store together until Ed died in 1931 and then Belle ran it alone until it burned in the fire of April 10, 1948 which also burned several other buildings in North Whitefield.
